

RED ARMY SLUGS WAY TO THE OUTER ENVIRONS OF KEY NAZI STRONGHOLD OF GRODNO; CAPTURE PINSK BASE

One Russian Spear-Head Strikes Southwest of Wilno to Niemen River above Grodno—Seizes Rail Town of Druskeniki on Southern Frontier of Lithuania.

By Natalie Rene
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
MOSCOW, July 15.—(TNS)—Red Army forces slugged their way today into the outer environs of the key German stronghold of Grodno, less than 20 miles from the Nazi-designated border of East Prussia, following the capture of the great supply base of Pinsk in the heart of the Pripiet marshes.

Soviet troops also won possession of Volkovysk, shielding the approaches to Bialystok, central stronghold of the enemy's Polish defense line running from Grodno to Ernest-Litovsk.

One Russian spearhead, striking southwest of the captured city of Wilno to the Niemen river above Grodno, seized the rail town of Druskeniki on the southern frontier of Lithuania, only 12 miles northeast of the western extremity of the Suwalki triangle which Germany has claimed as the border of East Prussia since 1939.

Pushing deeper into Lithuania and closer to the border of Latvia, the Russians liberated more than 310 towns and villages in the 22nd day of their great summer offensive, which Moscow has called a "win-the-war" offensive.

The capture of the 900-year-old city of Pinsk, which lies on the railroad running through the Pripiet marshes to Warsaw, and Volkovysk, 117 miles northeast of the Polish capital, was announced by Marshal Joseph Stalin in two special orders of the day. The fact that he issued

R. & H. Employees Reject Unions In An Election

According to unofficial figures the employees of the Rohn & Haas Company yesterday voted in favor of maintaining relations between the company and themselves as they are at the present time.

The election held by the NLRB is said to have resulted as follows: No union, 687; C. I. O., 583; A. F. L., 196.

Number of eligible voters listed are 1725. 1466 valid votes were counted; 15 ballots were challenged, and 11 votes were void.

In a statement issued today through plant officials, it is said: "The majority of 1481 valid votes and challenged ballots which are a basis for the majority have not been cast for anybody. Challenges are not sufficient in number to affect the results of the election."

Air Raid Warning System Changed

HARRISBURG, July 15.—Pennsylvania has set up a new air raid warning system which is considered likely to become the Commonwealth's permanent plan of dealing with civilian disasters.

The State Defense Council announced establishment of the system in line with recent action by the Army in turning over to the States complete responsibility for future warnings.

It provides that the Third Service Command hereafter notify the State command center here of any call for a practice blackout, air raid drill or possible enemy action. Manned 24 hours daily, the center will transmit the warnings to every county in the State.

The plan is said to be the first step in carrying out an objective expressed by Gov. Martin that an emergency setup be established to co-ordinate State and local agencies to deal with disasters that may happen in any community.

The new setup provides that five sources within the Commonwealth relay warnings after their receipt by the State Center from the Third Service Command.

The Philadelphia metropolitan district warning center will be responsible for passing on warnings when flashed from Harrisburg to the four adjacent counties—Bucks, Montgomery, Chester and Delaware.

Pittsburgh center will send warnings to Meadville, Warren, Bradford, Coudersport, Ridgeway, Clarion, Oil City, Sharon, New Castle, Beaver, Kittanning, Indiana, Johnstown, Somerset, Uniontown, Waynesburg and Clearfield.

The Allentown district will be responsible for notifying Pottsville, Stroudsburg, Mauch Chunk and eastern district centers, with the State center handling the remainder of the State.

PARTY FOR NAVY MAN

CROYDON, July 15.—Thomas Foerst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foerst, of Washington avenue, left for training with the U. S. Navy on Sunday. On Saturday evening he was given a farewell party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foerst, Jr., Philadelphia. A large group of friends and relatives attended. Walter received many gifts.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANEED BY SCRIBES

Members of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church of Doylestown have learned of the death of their former rector, the Rev. John Lowry Hady.

Mr. Hady, who was 53, died after a long illness from a heart ailment at his home in New York City. Burial took place on Monday in Everett.

Mr. Hady left Doylestown in 1927 to accept a call from the congregation of Gloria Dei (Old Swedes) Church, Philadelphia. He resigned in May, 1933, to become Episcopal chaplain at the University of Missouri and St. Stephens College, and rector of Calvary Church, at Columbia, Mo.

While in Doylestown he was active in community affairs. He

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Those Lovely Letters

Washington, July 13. THE LETTERS of Mr. Roosevelt and his personally selected chairman are upon a very lofty plane, indeed. The hand-picked subordinate reports to the Chief that a "clear majority" of the delegates "reflecting the vast majority of the American people" are pledged to his nomination, and the Chief, modestly declaring that "my only thought is for the good of the American people," and "I am a good soldier," asserts that he will sacrifice his personal desires and yield again to the "command of the people."

THE EXCHANGE literally reeks with nobility. One would never gather from Mr. Hannegan that for months past, aided by Mr. Roosevelt's personal secretaries, he has been pulling every possible wire to get this delegate majority. And certainly, one would never gather from Mr. Roosevelt's letter that he not only was fully aware and approved of what Mr. Hannegan and his White House aides were doing but encouraged it. Yet, there isn't an informed newspaperman or politician who doesn't know these things to be true.

NOR WOULD one gather from either letter that there are among the delegates several hundred strongly opposed to a fourth Roosevelt term, who feel that it is against the national interests to re-elect him and that the consequences would be very bad for him, for the party and for the nation. Yet, they will make no convention fight because the White House weight makes such a fight completely futile. Neither do we get from the letters any hint that the core of the Roosevelt convention majority is furnished by the big city bosses, whom Mr. Roosevelt for years has been feeding on Federal patronage

CITY STREETS SAFER FOR PEDESTRIANS THAN COUNTRY ROADS, CLAIMS AUTOMOBILE CLUB; RURAL ACCIDENT DEATHS INCREASE

City streets in Pennsylvania are becoming safer for pedestrians than country roads, according to State statistics quoted yesterday by Keystone Automobile Club showing that in the month of May there was a 120 per cent increase in pedestrian deaths in rural areas, in contrast to a 17.1 per cent decrease in urban areas.

Pedestrian deaths for that month increased by 12 in the country districts and decreased by 6 in cities and towns. Similarly, the Club says, the rural areas showed an increase of 33 in all traffic deaths in the period January 1 to June 1, while the urban areas registered a decrease of 28. Because of the upward trend of rural fatalities, the urban decrease was not sufficient to hold the toll down to the figures for the corresponding period last year. Total deaths were 499, an increase of five.

Blame for the deaths on country roads is placed by State safety authorities on careless and improper pedestrian practices—walking on highways where sidewalks were available and walking on the right side of the road "with" traffic, instead of on the left, facing traffic.

Thirty-two counties in the State had an increase in traffic deaths in the first five months, while Philadelphia led the list of 28 with decreases. The comparative figures are 92 in '43 and 74 in '44. Seven counties were free of traffic fatalities—Cameron, Forest, Greene, Indiana, Juniata, Sullivan and Wayne—and in five there was no change in number compared to last year. These counties are: Susquehanna, Pike, Lebanon, Clinton and Carbon.

In twenty-five counties, there was a decrease in pedestrian deaths and Philadelphia also heads this list, with 59 in the 5-month period compared to 64 last year.

Early this morning was a bad time for automobiles, and two of them went out of control of the drivers.

One car crashed into the mail box at Bath and Buckley streets, at 2:20 a. m., ripping it down. This box has been knocked down numerous times during the past few years.

The car then hit a pole and "about half the lights in Bristol were put out," say the police.

The driver of the car got away before the arrival of the police and took the car with him.

In Edgely on Haines Road a car hit a pole and started the ringing of numerous telephone bells in the area.

Swing Shift Bond Buyers Enjoy A Big Show Here

So interested were the buyers of war bonds in the program at the Bristol Theatre in the early hours of this morning that the crowd that nearly filled that "movie" house remained four to five hours. The show commenced at 1:15, but the doors had opened just after the midnight hour.

Edward Bloesinger, county war bond chairman, and Mrs. John Leslie Kileoyne, Bristol and Bensalem area chairman, were introduced. Mr. Alexander, of Fleetwings, Division of Kaiser Cargo, Inc., was the master of ceremonies.

The program of vocal and instrumental music and the "movie," "The Lady in the Dark" were much enjoyed by the "swing shifters." Fleetwings Choral Society, Fleetwings Life Bombers, entertainers from the Lido Venice, Andalusia, and others entertained.

Results of the show as far as bond sales are concerned are not definitely known at present, due to the fact it is stated that most of the bonds were sold at the various war plants, and tickets distributed to purchasers in that manner.

Mrs. William W. Ritchie Dies; Ill For Long Time

A resident of this section for the past 30 years, Mrs. Martha A. Ritchie, wife of William W. Ritchie, died in Bristol Township yesterday. Mrs. Ritchie, who had been ill for some time, is also survived by three daughters, Mrs. James Hughes, Mrs. Joseph Buck, Miss Florence Ritchie, a son, Howard Ritchie, all of Bristol; also seven grandchildren, and three great grandchildren.

The Rev. I. L. Clark, pastor of First Baptist Church, will conduct the service at the home of Mrs. James Hughes, Spruce street, Winder Village, on Tuesday at 1:30 o'clock. Burial will be in Hathero Cemetery, with George Molden, funeral director, in charge. Friends may call Monday evening.

Lions Club at Chalfont Honors Wounded Veteran

CHALFONT, July 15.—The Lions Club members observed Albert Hummhanz night this week when they paid tribute to Mr. Hummhanz, a disabled veteran of New Galena.

Speaking briefly the president, A. Winthrop Hiscoc, said: "The club is honored in honoring you Albert," and presented him a framed Lions certificate of merit, in appreciation of service rendered his country, and a pig skin belt.

The guest of honor asked that he be excused from speechmaking, and his military career was briefly outlined by Paul Locke, who explained Hummhanz had entered the service on February 16, 1943, and took part in two major engagements—Messina and Salerno.

The youthful hero, who was 20 years old on May 20, and who wore the Purple Heart decoration, was wounded at Salerno and hospitalized in Naples. Later in a hospital at Oran, he was returned to this country on May 15, and again hospitalized until June 5, when he received his honorable discharge. He is slowly recovering from his wounds.

OLD-FASHIONED PICNIC NOW IN LIME-LIGHT

"Gas" Restrictions Change Things; Races, Contests Now To The Fore

OUTINGS NEAR HOME

Picnics have changed—not that there is anything new about them—but the trend is toward the old-fashioned kind, pronounced by many as the best by far.

The change has been brought about during the past few years due to the fact buses cannot be chartered for picnic purposes, and the scarcity of gasoline in general, thus keeping operation of private cars at a minimum.

Consequently most Sunday School groups in looking forward to their annual picnics, highlights in the year with children and grown-ups alike, have not only changed the picnic sites, but the amusements have of necessity undergone changes.

Using groves or beaches nearby, or even the spacious church lawns, rousing good times are had by all. Instead of money spent on the carousel, the mountain scenic, the tunnel of love, etc., at the average amusement park, there has been revived the ever-likeable races—potato and sack races, three-legged races, pie-eating contests, foot races with goodly distances for the swift-legged boys and much, much shorter ones for the "fat" women and men. The soft-ball contest and always-popular "work-up" baseball game have come to the fore at the picnics, and everybody is happy about the whole thing. It is giving them a chance to get better acquainted, to enjoy a little good-natured "ribbing" in this or that stunt.

Furthermore old clothes can be worn at such a picnic, which is what the government urges—make them last a little longer. Slacks, play-suits, shorts, sun-bath dresses—even bathing suits—all are in style at such an outing.

Although a few Sunday Schools have dispensed with their annual outings, the majority are carrying on and having a better time than ever right at home.

Wilkinson Memorial Methodist Sunday School, Croydon, plans to conduct its picnic today at China Hall, in Croydon, within walking distance for the Croydonites. Bensalem Methodist Sunday School

Mrs. W. Cadwallader, 70, Dies of Heart Attack

WARRINGTON, July 15.—Mrs. Agnes M. Cadwallader, 70, widow of Washington Cadwallader, for many years clerk of Bucks County Commissioners, died in the Abington Hospital, Wednesday night, after having suffered a heart attack earlier in the day.

Born in this part of the county, where she spent her entire life, Mrs. Cadwallader was a daughter of the late Charles and Katie Meredith. She resided at "Kendall Farm," the Cadwallader homestead, 50 years.

A leader in community affairs, Mrs. Cadwallader was a member of the Warrington W. C. T. U., Warrington Farmers' Club, Warrington Women's Club, and Doylestown Chapter of the O. E. S. She was a life-long member of the Neshaminy of Warwick Presbyterian Church, Hartsville.

The deceased is survived by five children and 11 grandchildren.

Bucks Countians Contribute To Canteen

Wallace G. Murfit, chairman of the Bucks County Committee of the Salvation Army, states that money from the recent campaign was sent to Australia to equip a mobile canteen.

The keys of the canteen were turned over in the name of the citizens of Southeastern Pennsylvania, and the car will be used in all Australian theatres of war.

It so happened that Dr. Daniel Poling, Minister at Baptist Temple in Philadelphia, was in Australia at the time and offered the dedication prayer.

The car is most up to date. It is equipped with stainless steel lined urns for coffee and has a complete wireless and amplifying system. It is to be dispatched to the New Guinea jungle service immediately.

3 Bucks Countians Are Freshmen at State

STATE COLLEGE, July 15.—Freshmen represent one-third of the total civilian enrollment at the Pennsylvania State College this semester, Registrar William S. Hoffman announced today. He set the total civilian figure at 1230 of which more than 450 are first and second semester freshmen.

DAILEY SECURES A LICENSE TO WED BUCKS CO. CO-ED

Application Had Been Made When Couple Was At Elkton Monday

STRONG OPPOSITION

Funeral of Girl's Grandfather Held; Interviews With Girl Prevented

Despite the fact that the parents of his sweetheart still are definitely opposed to him becoming their son-in-law, David E. Dailey, 26, Philadelphia, was in Elkton, Md., yesterday, to get a license to wed Barbara M. Sellers, 20, New Britain, Bucks County. Application had been made for the license when the two were in Maryland early this week, and during which time of their disappearance search for their whereabouts was made throughout the East.

While the prospective bridegroom engaged an Elkton minister, the Rev. W. F. Hopkins, for a future and undisclosed date for the ceremony, Ormond Sellers, father of Barbara, expressed the hope that his daughter would complete her studies at Temple and then join the WAC.

"Make no mistake, we are definitely opposed to this marriage," he said, "and if that young man wants to come around to the house, I won't lay a hand on him, but he'll know exactly how we feel about this matter."

At 2 p. m., Barbara and her family attended the funeral of the grandfather, Ananias A. Sellers, 76, whose death when he was struck by a train last Tuesday brought the eloping couple home from Elkton. The aged man, worried and frantic at the disappearance of his grand-

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

U. S. Troops Near Livorno

Rome—American Fifth Army troops, scoring gains of between three and five miles, were disclosed today to have hammered their way to within six miles of the outskirts of the big Italian west coast port of Livorno—Leghorn—, despite stiff resistance.

Four towns and a number of important hills between the Cecina and Arno rivers were captured by the advancing forces of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, which reached a point ten miles from the Arno due east of Livorno. Allied Mediterranean headquarters disclosed that since the start of the Italian offensive May 11, more than 30,000 Germans have been taken prisoner.

Germans Claim Allies "Repelled Everywhere"

London—The German High Command today claimed that Allied forces have been "repelled everywhere" along the French Normandy battlefield.

The communique declared that "owing to heavy losses sustained by the enemy on the previous days only local attacks were made east and northeast of St. Lo and in the sector between Pont Herbert and Sainteny. The enemy was repelled everywhere with losses."

Despite the favorable communique, Fritz Eichorn, German political spokesman, warned the German people that "our enemies are squeezing us with all their might. The days of the great storm are upon us."

Meanwhile Allied headquarters announced that the air arm gave strong support to advancing ground forces. Allied heavy bombers, medium bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters carried out widespread attacks yesterday on enemy objectives throughout the battle zone and farther inland despite inclement weather.

ROBOT DEFENSE

The admission by Prime Minister Churchill to Parliament that the robot bombs which the Nazis are dropping on London from launching sites on the French coast have caused more than 10,000 casualties shows this latest German weapon to be somewhat more effective than had previously been conceded. The Germans are sending over from 100 to 150 robots daily, according to the Prime Minister, and it is apparent from the list of casualties which he presented that most of them are aimed at London.

A reassuring factor is a general belief that defense measures being undertaken are on a vaster scale than the Prime Minister indicated. Obviously, he would not tip the Allies' hand to the enemy. Allied bombing fleets continue to dump huge loads of bombs on points along the French coast suspected of harboring the launching devices. Efforts to explode the robot marauders in the air before they land also are being stepped up day by day.

The British goal is reported to be the destruction of 90 per cent of these bombs before they can land and explode. It is recalled that the Germans were discouraged in sending their bombing planes over England when their losses mounted to more than 10 per cent. Pilots couldn't stand the gaff.

But the robot bombs are unmanned and the Germans can afford to lose a high percentage of them so long as they maintain a nuisance value. But if the British can destroy 90 per cent of them the enemy would hardly find it worth the trouble to go on.

As in the case of the U-boat, this problem will be solved by the preponderance of defense weapons. The Allies put so many fighting ships in the Atlantic the U-boats had to turn tail. The plan seems to be to meet the robot bombs with sufficient fighting planes to destroy them in the air.

Thus another vaunted Hitler weapon will be canceled by the capacity of the United Nations to procure an abundance of materials for both offense and defense.

POWER TRAINS

It is probable that Russia is as far ahead with the planning of a reconversion program as any nation. Russia is placing orders in the United States for reconversion tools. One order is for ten mobile power trains, each capable of supplying the power needs of a great city.

Each train of eight cars generates 5,000 kilowatts. The key car is a 640-ton unit with a steam turbine which drives an electric generator. Steam to whirl the windmill like turbine 3,000 times a minute comes from the boiler car. Russia will send the trains into conquered territories on the heels of advancing armies. In a few hours electric power will be available for military needs and for civilian habitation.

After the war the equipment of these trains can be removed and placed on permanent foundations in new power stations, or the trains can be kept in readiness for floods and other emergencies.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

—bosses like Hague, of New Jersey; the O'Connells, of Albany; Tammany Hall and Ed Flynn, of New York and Brooklyn; Eddie Kelly, of Chicago, and Guffy, of Pennsylvania. Without the delegates controlled by these bosses, Mr. Hannegan's "clear majority" just would not exist.

THESE ARE indisputable facts, but the letters do not touch upon them. Nevertheless, they ought to be known far more widely than they are. In view of what Mr. Roosevelt has been doing and what scores of other Presidential jobholders and aides have been doing, these letters seem uncouth, disingenuous and the result of cold political calculation. The Roosevelt worshippers will swallow them whole and think them wonderful. But those who do not shut their minds to the facts will certainly gag. It is, perhaps, natural that the letters should have been followed by a renewal of the prediction that when the convention meets the President will be on the Normandy battlefield. That would strengthen the strategy of the fourth-term managers, which is to keep the war always to the front, put the emphasis heavily on the Commander in Chief and relegate all domestic issues to the rear.

THERE are many who feel that the visit would be a superb political coup on the part of Mr. Roosevelt, which would flatten out his opponents and make it impossible for them ever to regain the national attention with their indictment of the Administration's incompetency or warnings of the very real national dangers involved in a fourth term. However, it is reported, some of the more astute of the White House aides feel the visit actually might turn into a colossal blunder. So great is this chance, it is said, that, keenly as he wants to do it, Mr. Roosevelt will never put himself in such a position. For one thing, it is argued, the Commander in Chief's presence on the battlefield would need to be completely justified and it is just impossible to construct a convincing case. Clearly, there exist no reasons of military strategy, no necessity for conference or personal contact.

INSTEAD, the time of the high commanding officers would be unnecessarily taken up by the visit of the President. Their attention would, to some degree at least, be diverted from the vital business of beating the Germans. Great precautions would have to be taken to insure, so far as possible, the Presidential safety. Their burdens and responsibilities would be increased. Without a very real reason for his presence the head of the nation has no right to expose himself to the hazards of such an adventure. Barring such a reason such a visit at such a time and under existing circumstances certainly would be denounced by the Republicans as a cheap political gesture utterly unworthy of the President of the United States. And so it would be a deliberate use of the war for purely political purposes.

ONCE THAT idea penetrated the popular mind the political consequences to Mr. Roosevelt might be disastrous. This Commander in Chief business can be overplayed. Mr. Roosevelt's effort, in his letter of acceptance, to draw a parallel between himself and GI Joe on the fighting front was extremely strained. Use of the war to justify all White House politics and cover up all New Deal politicians may react before the campaign is over.

always to the front, put the emphasis heavily on the Commander in Chief and relegate all domestic issues to the rear.

THERE are many who feel that the visit would be a superb political coup on the part of Mr. Roosevelt, which would flatten out his opponents and make it impossible for them ever to regain the national attention with their indictment of the Administration's incompetency or warnings of the very real national dangers involved in a fourth term. Dear Father we thank Thee for Thy teaching concerning the meaning of life. Length of years does not constitute life. Life is a certain quality of living. In Jesus we have, not length of years, but perfect living. It is this life which is eternal and which cannot die. May we, this day, enter more enthusiastically into this Abundant Life which is ours providing we are willing to lose ourselves in Christ and live in Him and with Him for Thy glory. In Jesus' holy name we pray. Amen.

SUPERB PITCHING BY SULLIVAN AIDS VOLTZ NINE TO WIN

Local Gasoline Men Win Second Straight Game Industrial League

FLEETWINGS LOSES

Sullivan's Slants Could Not Be Solved By The Fleetwingers

TRENTON INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE
SCHEDULE FOR TOMORROW
VOLTZ-TEXACO - ROHM & HAAS
(Maple Beach field)

EDGELEY, July 15—Superb relief pitching by "Eddie" Sullivan added the Voltz-Texaco team to mark up its second straight win of the Trenton Industrial League last evening on the Edgely diamond. The Fleetwings Arrows were the losers with the final score, 8-6.

Sullivan's southpaw slants were not put into work until the eighth inning when Shackleton appeared to be weakening. One was out, one run in and the bags loaded when Manager George Dougherty sent in Sullivan to relieve Shackleton. Sullivan promptly ended the inning by fanning both Lou Heisler and Barney Ludwig. He added two more strikeouts in the ninth.

The game was a nip and tuck affair all the way with the lead changing hands several times and it was until the last half of the eighth when the Voltz-men scored twice when Alex Dewsnap doubled to score Stratton and later scored himself on an error that the game was decided.

Sammy Calderone, young catcher for the Winners, put his team ahead in the third when he lammed the ball into the canal for a home run. One was on base at the time. But it was only a short lead for in the last half of the inning, Dewsnap came through with a triple and scored on an outfield fly to deadlock the count.

With the score evened up, Voltz went ahead in the fourth when Bill Dougherty hit a two-bagger, advanced when Shackleton got on via an error and scored on George Ritter's fly to left.

Shackleton went sour in the fifth and gave Fleetwings a tally on walks to Heisler, Bloom, Calderone and D'Ascendis. The rally ended when Pappaterra grounded out to third.

In the sixth, the gasoleers went ahead again when Bill Dougherty hit safely. Stratton walked, and Ritter came through with a single.

separate orders for each city indicated the importance which he attaches to the twin triumph.

The Soviet midnight communiqué disclosed that Major-General Engel, commander of the German 45th Infantry Division, had surrendered with his entire staff at Volkovysk. He was the 20th Nazi general to be taken by the Russians since they launched their big push June 23rd.

(The secret German-language radio station Atlantic was quoted by NBC monitors as reporting that "Russian armies entered Rozanka in East Prussia" at noon Friday, but there was no confirmation of the report from any official source.)

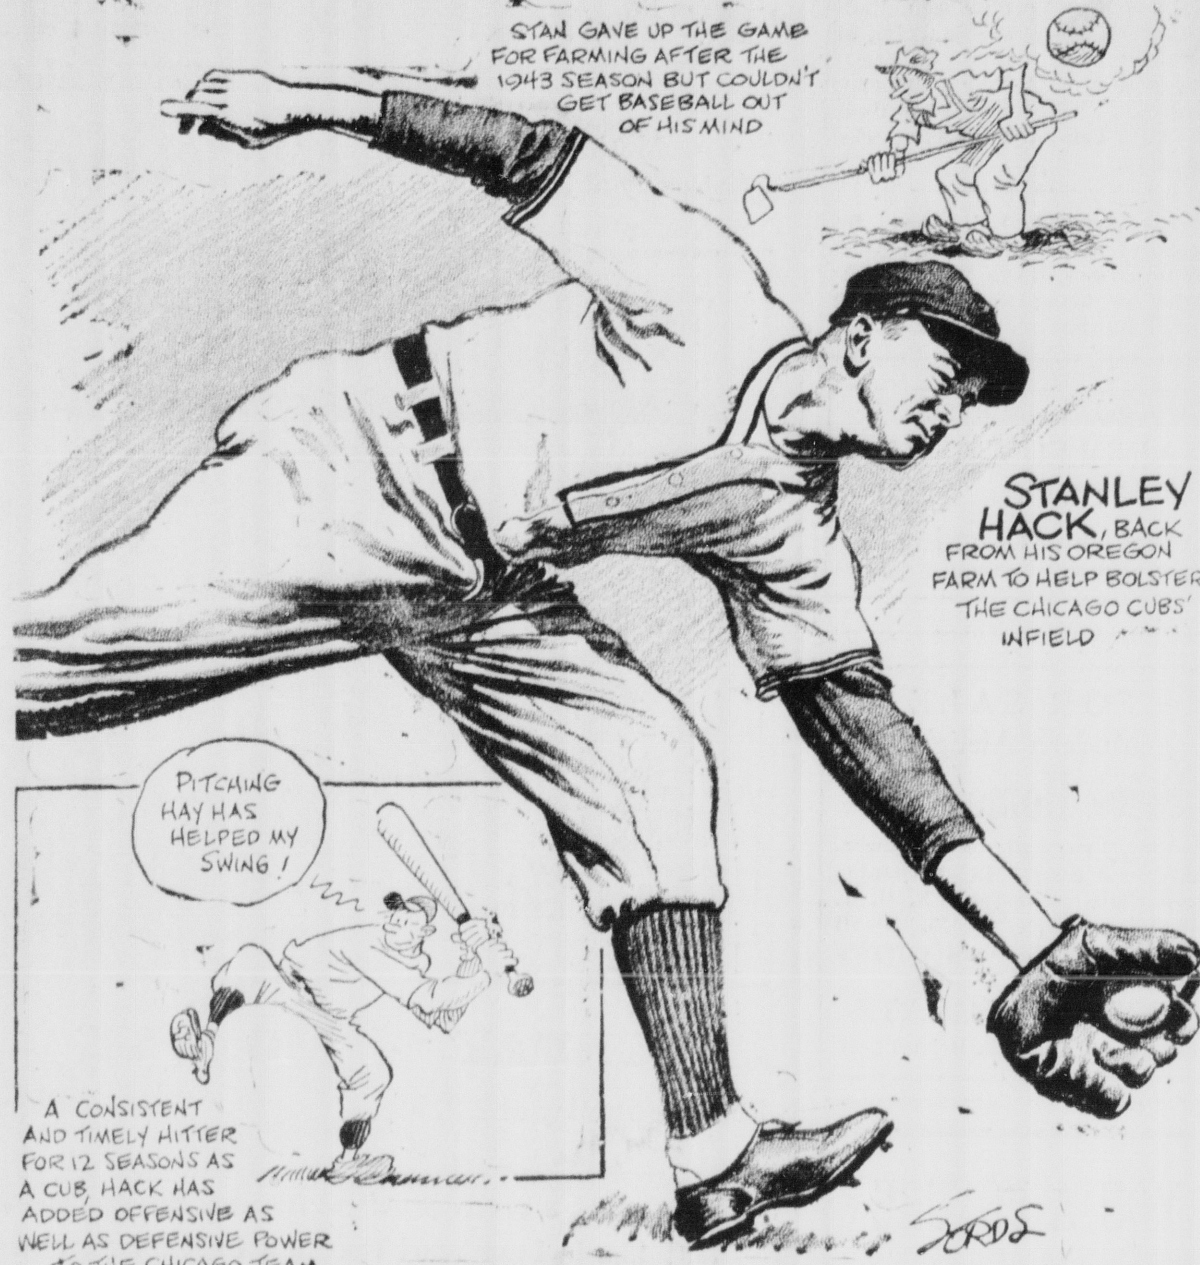

(The Nazi DNB agency claimed that the Germans had driven into Grodno twice Thursday but were driven out.)

American First Army forces smashing ahead on a four-mile sector of the Normandy front east of Lessay punched forward to within one mile of the Nazi western defense anchor today and surged to within two miles of the road and rail junction of Periers.

Lieut. Gen. Omar M. Bradley's forces, hurling back elements of some 11 or 12 elite Nazi divisions, seized the towns of Beauvais and La Jourdaines in their drive on Lessay. A few miles east of Nazi Marshal Rommel's anchor city, the Yanks drove Nazi defenders from Lalonde and reached the flooded Ay River basin.

Slashing ahead east of Lessay, Yank forces threatened encirclement of the German garrison holding that vital defense point.

Elsewhere, along a 49-mile front from Saint Lo to the sea, American units scored small but important gains, blasting back reinforced German units in bitter fighting from hedgerow to hedgerow.

An Allied Headquarters spokesman announced that the entire Cherbourg peninsula area is now "secure."

Near the eastern end of the American sector of the Normandy front, Gen. Bradley's men lunged forward in another big advance which thrust Yank lines to a point two-and-a-half miles east of the nine way road and rail hub of Saint Lo.

On the blazing eastern front, the unsmacked Soviet war machine smashed into the outskirts of Grodno, key German stronghold only 20 miles from the Nazi-designated border of East Prussia, after seizing the great supply base of Pinsk in the heart of the Pripiet Marshes.

Other Russian forces advancing toward the bastion of Bialystok, central strong point on the Nazi Polish defense line running from Grodno to Brest-Litovsk, seized the town of Volkovysk.

One Soviet spearhead moving southwest from captured Wilno (Vilna) took the rail town of Druskeniki, on the southern frontier of Lithuania, 12 miles northeast of the Suwalki triangle which Germany has claimed as the border of East Prussia since 1939.

Red Army forces in Lithuania and central Latvia liberated more than 310 towns from the Nazis on the 22nd day of their "win the war" summer offensive.

Editor, The Courier,
Bristol, Pa.

Dear Sir:
This is a letter from William Shire... in Honolulu. Would you put it in The Courier, as a lot of folks would like to read it. While here in Pearl Harbor I ran into a few local boys, and were we all happy! The boys were "Tony" Puccio, Joseph Flatch, Morris Bloodgood, Lewis Dopson, Dominic Potena. Boy, what a happy bunch! Also Carmen Gullato. They all said to do lots of work in Bristol, and help us all return soon to our homes. And also we wish The Courier would continue on as it has done so many years. . . .

I remain, yours,

NEW YORK, July 15—(INS)—Count Fleet was a horse with real time. And time is what I mean. Take his very last race, for instance, 2:28-1/5 for one mile and a half—a race which he won by 25 official lengths.

Only once in the history of our racing has that time been beaten—when Bolingbroke beat Whirlaway in 2:27-3/5. What could the Count have done if he had been pressed? I believe he might have clipped three seconds off Bolingbroke's record. He comes closer to being another Seabiscuit than any horse I've seen run.

Count Wins With Ease

Johnny Longden doesn't know how fast he is. No one knows. He wins with incredible ease, carries weight and isn't temperamental. But—he would have to do what the Biscuit has done to sell me the idea he is quite that good.

Look at it this way. Man o' War never was at the mercy of the handicappers although he carried plenty of weight. Count Fleet has carried only scale weight, 126 pounds top.

Not so Seabiscuit. Once he hit his stride, the handicappers made him the high weight almost every time he ran.

Let me add, however, he never carried as much as Man o' War. Weight will stop any horse, as it will any athlete, but I honestly believe a great horse like Seabiscuit could carry 150 pounds and win—yes, as little as he is.

Tom Smith and Mr. Howard would have yelled like hell heaven if he had been asked to carry the weights Discovery backed but that isn't saying he couldn't have done it.

Seabiscuit, you will gather, was no ordinary thoroughbred. The fortune he won on the race tracks is only part of the story. What would Man o' War have done at seven? He was retired after his three-year-old campaign, having had only two years of racing. Undoubtedly Count Fleet will be returned to competition and we may get the answer as to his fortitude.

Just Taken for a Ride

When you stop to figure it, we jockeys just go along for the ride. I have been called "The Iceman"—I'm supposed to be cool and collected. Perhaps I am. But I can name a dozen other race riders with equal composure.

Plenty of others ride just as well as I. We are all at the mercy of the horse. The average thoroughbred weighs half a ton more than his rider and usually has his own idea of how he wants to run his race.

You should be in the saddle on a fast-breaking horse like Occupation, for example. When the starting bell rings, you might weigh twice my hundred and sixteen pounds and you'd still find you were on a horse that was doing what he wanted to do and you couldn't stop him.

One day last summer at Washington Park I dismounted from one of those speed horses which had missed by inches. A racing fan leaned over the rail and cried, "I thought when you got up on that pig you might reserve him and come from behind—you're just like all the rest!" I didn't answer him.

If he only knew how much the trainer and I had hoped I would have been able to do what the disappointed fan had wanted us to do!

daughter, was killed instantly a short distance from his home. Barbara, visibly affected by the loss of her grandfather, to whom she was devoted, wore a blue dress, blue hat and black gloves to the funeral.

Simple services were held in the chapel of the Beulah Cemetery, a short distance from the Sellers home.

Mrs. Sellers hurried her daughter to a waiting car to prevent any possible contact with the public, and in order to prevent any interviews.

It was a few hours before the funeral that Barbara's father and her mother, Meta, gave a detailed account of their attitude toward their daughter's romance.

Mrs. Sellers said that her daughter was overcome with grief over the death of the grandfather because they had been unusually devoted.

"Because of this," Mrs. Sellers said, "we haven't talked about Barbara's future plans since she came home. But we hope she will come to her senses. The boy is not her type, and would not fit into life out in the country."

It is possible, it was stated, that Barbara may return to her studies at Temple University, Philadelphia, on Monday. She said she would like to return but feared the attention that might be drawn to her because of what had transpired during the past week.

ed in the South Pacific, died, thanks in great measure to plasma.

Practically every adult man or woman in normal health is capable of giving a pint of blood. The simple process, accompanied by no pain whatever, takes only a half hour. Millions refrain from offering their blood merely because of the timidity that goes with every "first" in their lives. The significant fact about blood donations is that once this hesitancy is overcome and a first donation is made, the donor feels a real desire to make another donation as soon as possible. This is proven by the fact that when the mobile unit was last in Bristol, 104 of those questioned had given before. Of these, 28 had given four or more times, with several having given seven, eight and nine times.

Can you not, then, give at least once. Phone for an appointment tonight. Call a blood donor chairman, Mrs. T. B. Megar, Bristol 2920, or Mrs. Thomas R. Powell, Cornwells 0551.

RED ARMY SLUGS WAY TO THE OUTER ENVIRONS OF KEY NAZI STRONGHOLD OF GRODNO; CAPTURE PINSK BASE

By Natalie Rene
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
MOSCOW, July 15—(INS)—Red Army forces slugged their way today into the outer environs of the key German stronghold of Grodno, less than 20 miles from the Nazi-designated border of East Prussia, following the capture of the great supply base of Pinsk in the heart of the Pripiet marshes.

Soviet troops also won possession of Volkovysk, shielding the approaches to Bialystok, central stronghold of the enemy's Polish defense line running from Grodno to Brest-Litovsk.

One Russian spearhead, striking southwest of the captured city of Wilno to the Niemen river above Grodno, seized the rail town of Druskeniki on the southern frontier of Lithuania, only 12 miles northeast of the western extremity of the Suwalki triangle which Germany has claimed as the border of East Prussia since 1939.

Pushing deeper into Lithuania and closer to the border of Latvia, the Russians liberated more than 310 towns and villages in the 22nd day of their great summer offensive, which Moscow has called a "win-the-war" offensive.

The capture of the 900-year-old city of Pinsk, which lies on the railroad running through the Pripiet marshes to Warsaw, and Volkovysk, 117 miles northeast of the Polish capital, was announced by Marshal Joseph Stalin in two special orders of the day. The fact that he issued

HARRISBURG, July 15—Pennsylvania has set up a new air raid warning system which is considered likely to become the Commonwealth's permanent plan of dealing with civilian disasters.

The State Defense Council announced establishment of the system in line with recent action by the Army in turning over to the States complete responsibility for future warnings.

It provides that the Third Service Command hereafter notify the State control center here of any call for a practice blackout, air raid drill or possible enemy action. Manned 24 hours daily, the center will transmit the warnings to every county in the State.

The plan is said to be the first step in carrying out an objective expressed by Gov. Martin that an emergency setup be established to co-ordinate State and local agencies to deal with disasters that may happen in any community.

The new setup provides that five sources within the Commonwealth relay warnings after their receipt by the State Center from the Third Service Command.

The Philadelphia metropolitan district warning center will be responsible for passing on warnings when flashed from Harrisburg to the four adjacent counties—Bucks, Montgomery, Chester and Delaware.

Pittsburgh center will send warnings to Meadville, Warren, Bradford, Connersport, Ridgeway, Clarion, Oil City, Sharon, New Castle, Beaver, Kittanning, Indiana, Johnstown, Somerset, Uniontown, Waynesburg and Clearfield.

The Allentown district will be responsible for notifying Pottsville, Stroudsburg, Mauch Chunk and eastern district centers, with the State center handling the remainder of the State.

There will be two instructors, Miss Florence Bruden, of the High School faculty, will have charge of games including softball, badminton, croquet, etc., while Miss Sterling, of Oxford Valley, 4th grade teacher at the Parkland school, will assist the pupils in handicraft where they will make useful articles.

The playground committee is composed of representatives from the following organizations: the four local churches, Parent-Teachers Association, Langhorne Sorosis, Junior Sorosis, Lions Club, Rod & Gun Club, Fire Company Auxiliary, Legion Auxiliary, and Borough Council.

Swing Shift Bond Buyers Enjoy A Big Show Here

So interested were the buyers of war bonds in the program at the Bristol Theatre in the early hours of this morning that the crowd that nearly filled that "movie" house remained four to five hours. The show commenced at 1:15, but the doors had opened just after the midnight hour.

Edward Bloesinger, county war bond chairman, and Mrs. John Leslie Killoyne, Bristol and Bensalem area chairman, were introduced. Mr. Alexander, of Fleetwings, Division of Kaiser Cargo, Inc., was the master of ceremonies.

The program of vocal and instrumental music and the "movie," "The Lady in the Dark" were much enjoyed by the "swing shifters." Fleetwings Choral Society, Fleetwings Jive Bombers, entertainers from the Lido Venice, Andalusia, and others entertained.

Results of the show as far as bond sales are concerned are not definitely known at present, due to the fact it is stated that most of the bonds were sold at the various war plants, and tickets distributed to purchasers in that manner.

CITY STREETS SAFER FOR PEDESTRIANS THAN COUNTRY ROADS, CLAIMS AUTOMOBILE CLUB; RURAL ACCIDENT DEATHS INCREASE

City streets in Pennsylvania are becoming safer for pedestrians than country roads, according to State statistics quoted yesterday by Keystone Automobile Club showing that in the month of May there was a 120 per cent increase in pedestrian deaths in rural areas, in contrast to a 17.1 per cent decrease in urban areas.

Pedestrian deaths for that month increased by 12 in the country districts and decreased by 6 in cities and towns. Similarly, the Club says, the rural areas showed an increase of 33 in all traffic deaths in the period January 1 to June 1, while the urban areas registered a decrease of 28. Because of the upward trend of rural fatalities, the urban decrease was not sufficient to hold the toll down to the figures for the corresponding period last year. Total deaths were 199, an increase of five.

Blame for the deaths on country roads is placed by State safety authorities on careless and improper pedestrian practices—walking on highways where sidewalks were available and walking on the right side of the road "with" traffic, instead of on the left, facing traffic.

Thirty-two counties in the State had an increase in traffic deaths in the first five months, while Philadelphia led the list of 28 with decreases. The comparative figures are 92 in '43 and 74 in '44. Seven counties were free of traffic fatalities—Cameron, Forest, Greene, Indiana, Juniata, Sullivan and Wayne—and in five there was no change in number compared to last year.

These counties are: Susquehanna, Pike, Lebanon, Clinton and Carbon.

In twenty-five counties, there was a decrease in pedestrian deaths and Philadelphia also heads this list, with 59 in the 5-month period compared to 64 last year.

Two Cars Hit Poles; Put Lights Out; Ring Bells

Early this morning was a bad time for automobiles, and two of them went out of control of the drivers.

One car crashed into the mail box at Bath and Buckley streets, at 2:20 a. m., ripping it down. This box has been knocked down numerous times during the past few years.

The car then hit a pole and "about half the lights in Bristol were put out," say the police.

The driver of the car got away before the arrival of the police and took the car with him.

In Edgely on Haines Road a car hit a pole and started the ringing of numerous telephone bells in the area.

Survey of Previous Blood Donors Shows That Many Professions Donated

ADVISE "GET IN LINE"

By Mrs. Leon J. H. Hutton
(Publicity Chairman, Bristol Branch, American Red Cross)

When the mobile unit of the American Red Cross Blood Donor Service was in Bristol last August, 266 donors were interviewed after they had given their blood. They were asked their occupation, the number of times they had donated blood and whether they had any close relatives in service.

It was interesting to note that when the question "occupation?" was asked, the most hesitant of the group was the housewife. "Just housewife" she would say apologetically. Yet she might well be proud of the group to which she belongs for it led all the rest in the number of blood donors. Of the 266 donors, 74 were housewives. The largest occupational group was war workers with 112, but this figure included both men and women. Twenty-one donors were professional men and women, and the 59 others held various other positions.

Sixty-six of the donors had brothers or sisters in the armed forces, and 39 had sons, while only seven had husbands. It will be remembered that at the time of the survey last August few husbands had been called by Selective Service in this area. The surprising result of this question on relatives in service was the fact that 154, or over half of the group of donors, had no relatives in the service. These people, then, were Americans who recognized the close relationship between every American civilian and every American service man. This is the bond which all patriots feel in total war.

Hundreds of thousands of men and women have responded to the call for blood donations. Approximately six million pints of American blood have been given since the Red Cross Blood Donor Service was established three years ago at

CHALFONT, July 15—The Lions Club members observed Albert Hummhanz night this week when they paid tribute to Mr. Hummhanz, a disabled veteran of New Galena.

Speaking briefly the president, A. Winthrop Hiscoc, said: "The club is honored in honoring you Albert," and presented him a framed Lions certificate of merit, in appreciation of service rendered his country, and a pig skin belt.

The guest of honor asked that he be excused from speechmaking, and his military career was briefly outlined by Paul Locke, who explained Hummhanz had entered the service on February 16, 1943, and took part in two major engagements—Messina and Salerno.

The youthful hero, who was 20 years old on May 29, and who wore the Purple Heart decoration, was wounded at Salerno and hospitalized in Naples. Later in a hospital at Oran, he was returned to this country on May 15, and again hospitalized until June 5, when he received his honorable discharge. He is slowly recovering from his wounds.

"Gas" Restrictions Change Things; Races, Contests Now To The Fore

OUTINGS NEAR HOME

Picnics have changed—not that there is anything new about them—but the trend is toward the old-fashioned kind, pronounced by many as the best by far.

The change has been brought about during the past few years due to the fact buses cannot be chartered for picnic purposes, and the scarcity of gasoline in general, thus keeping operation of private cars at a minimum.

Consequently most Sunday School groups in looking forward to their annual picnics, highlights in the year with children and grown-ups alike, have not only changed the picnic sites, but the amusements have of necessity undergone changes.

Using groves or beaches nearby, or even the spacious church lawns, rousing good times are had by all. Instead of money spent on the carousel, the mountain scenic, the tunnel of love, etc., at the average amusement park, there has been revived the ever-likeable races—potato and sack races, three-legged races, pie-eating contests, foot races with goodly distances for the swift-legged boys and much, much shorter ones for the "fat" women and men. The soft-ball contest and always-popular "work-up" baseball game have come to the fore at the picnics, and everybody is happy about the whole thing. It is giving them a chance to get better acquainted, to enjoy a little good-natured "ribbing" in this or that stunt.

Furthermore old clothes can be worn at such a picnic, which is what the government urges—make them last a little longer. Slacks, play-suits, shorts, sun-back dresses—even bathing suits—all are in style at such an outing.

Although a few Sunday Schools have dispensed with their annual outings, the majority are carrying on and having a better time than ever right at home.

Wilkinson Memorial Methodist Sunday School, Croydon, plans to conduct its picnic today at China Hall, in Croydon, within walking distance for the Croydonites. Bensalem Methodist Sunday School

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England, July 15—2nd Lieutenant Marshall J. Rahn, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall J. Rahn, Andalusia, Pa., has been awarded the air medal, as recently announced by the group commander, Col. George L. Robinson, Los Angeles, Cal.

Lt. Rahn is a pilot of a Flying Fortress. His citation read, in part, "For meritorious achievement during six heavy bombardment missions over Germany and German-occupied Europe."

Before entering the AAF, Lt. Rahn was an aircraft mechanic at Fleetwings, Inc., Bristol, Pa. His wife, Mrs. Dora G. Rahn, lives in Waco, Texas.

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

U. S. Troops Near Livorno

Rome—American Fifth Army troops, scoring gains of between three and five miles, were disclosed today to have hammered their way to within six miles of the outskirts of the big Italian west coast port of Livorno—Leghorn—, despite stiff resistance.

Four towns and a number of important hills between the Cecina and Arno rivers were captured by the advancing forces of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, which reached a point ten miles from the Arno due east of Livorno. Allied Mediterranean headquarters disclosed that since the start of the Italian offensive May 11, more than 30,000 Germans have been taken prisoner.

Germans Claim Allies "Repelled Everywhere"

London—The German High Command today claimed that Allied forces have been "repelled everywhere" along the French Normandy battlefield.

The communiqué declared that "owing to heavy losses sustained by the enemy on the previous days only local attacks were made east and northeast of St. Lo and in the sector between Pont Herbert and Sainteny. The enemy was repelled everywhere with losses."

Despite the favorable communiqué, Fritz Eichhorn, German political spokesman, warned the German people that "our enemies are squeezing us with all their might. The days of the great storm are upon us."

Meanwhile Allied headquarters announced that the air arm gave strong support to advancing ground forces. Allied heavy bombers, medium bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters carried out widespread attacks yesterday on enemy objectives throughout the battle zone and farther inland despite inclement weather.

DAILEY SECURES A LICENSE TO WED BUCKS CO. CO-ED

Application Had Been Made When Couple Was At Elkton Monday

STRONG OPPOSITION

Despite the fact that the parents of his sweetheart still are definitely opposed to him becoming their son-in-law, David E. Dailey, 26, Philadelphia, was in Elkton, Md., yesterday, to get a license to wed Barbara M. Sellers, 26, New Britain, Bucks County. Application had been made for the license when the two were in Maryland early this week, and during which time of their disappearance search for them was made throughout the East.

While the prospective bridegroom engaged an Elkton minister, the Rev. W. F. Hopkins, for a future and undisclosed date for the ceremonies, Ormond Sellers, father of Barbara, expressed the hope that his daughter would complete her studies at Temple and then join the WAC.

"Make no mistake, we are definitely opposed to this marriage," he said, "and if that young man wants to come around to the house, I won't lay a hand on him, but he'll know exactly how we feel about this matter."

At 2 p. m., Barbara and her family attended the funeral of the grandfather, Ananias A. Sellers, 76, whose death when he was struck by a train last Tuesday brought the eloping couple home from Elkton. The aged man, worried and frantic at the disappearance of his grand-

ROBOT DEFENSE

The admission by Prime Minister Churchill to Parliament that the robot bombs which the Nazis are dropping on London from launching sites on the French coast have caused more than 10,000 casualties shows this latest German weapon to be somewhat more effective than had previously been conceded. The Germans are sending over from 100 to 150 robots daily, according to the Prime Minister, and it is apparent from the list of casualties which he presented that most of them are aimed at London.

A reassuring factor is a general belief that defense measures being undertaken are on a vaster scale than the Prime Minister indicated. Obviously, he would not tip the Allies' hand to the enemy. Allied bombing fleets continue to dump huge loads of bombs on points along the French coast suspected of harboring the launching devices. Efforts to explode the robot marauders in the air before they land also are being stepped up day by day.

The British goal is reported to be the destruction of 90 per cent of these bombs before they can land and explode. It is recalled that the Germans were discouraged in sending their bombing planes over England when their losses mounted to more than 10 per cent. Pilots couldn't stand the gaff.

But the robot bombs are unmanned and the Germans can afford to lose a high percentage of them so long as they maintain a nuisance value. But if the British can destroy 90 per cent of them the enemy would hardly find it worth the trouble to go on.

As in the case of the U-boat, this problem will be solved by the preponderance of defense weapons. The Allies put so many fighting ships in the Atlantic the U-boats had to turn tail. The plan seems to be to meet the robot bombs with sufficient fighting planes to destroy them in the air.

Thus another vaunted Hitler weapon will be canceled by the capacity of the United Nations to procure an abundance of materials for both offense and defense.

POWER TRAINS

It is probable that Russia is as far ahead with the planning of a reconversion program as any nation. Russia is placing orders in the United States for reconversion tools. One order is for ten mobile power trains, each capable of supplying the power needs of a great city.

Each train of eight cars generates 5,000 kilowatts. The key car is a 640-ton unit with a steam turbine which drives an electric generator. Steam to whirl the windmill like turbine 3,000 times a minute comes from the boiler car. Russia will send the trains into conquered territories on the heels of advancing armies. In a few hours electric power will be available for military needs and for civilian habitation.

After the war the equipment of these trains can be removed and placed on permanent foundations for new power stations, or the trains can be kept in readiness for floods and other emergencies.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

—bosses like Hague, of New Jersey; the O'Connells, of Albany; Tammany Hall and Ed Flynn, of New York and Brooklyn; Eddie Kelly, of Chicago, and Guffy, of Pennsylvania. Without the delegations controlled by these bosses, Mr. Hannegan's "clear majority" just would not exist.

THESE ARE indisputable facts, but the letters do not touch upon them. Nevertheless, they ought to be known far more widely than they are. In view of what Mr. Hannegan has been doing and what scores of other Presidential job-holders and aides have been doing, these letters seem unctuous, disingenuous and the result of cold political calculation. The Roosevelt worshippers will swallow them whole and think them wonderful. But those who do not shut their minds to the facts will certainly gag. It is, perhaps, natural that the letters should have been followed by a renewal of the prediction that when the convention meets the President will be on the Normandy battlefield. That would strengthen the strategy of the fourth-term managers, which is to keep the war always to the front, put the emphasis heavily on the Commander in Chief and relegate all domestic issues to the rear.

THERE are many who feel that the visit would be a superb political coup on the part of Mr. Roosevelt, which would flatten out his opponents and make it impossible for them ever to regain the national attention with their indictment of the Administration's incompetency or warnings of the very real national dangers involved in a fourth term. However, it is reported, some of the more astute of the White House aides feel the visit easily might turn into a colossal blunder. So great is this chance, it is said, that, keenly as he wants to do it, Mr. Roosevelt will never put himself in such a position. For one thing, it is argued, the Commander in Chief's presence on the battlefield would need to be completely justified and it is just impossible to construct a convincing case. Clearly, there exist no reasons of military strategy, no necessity for conference or personal contact.

INSTEAD, the time of the high commanding officers would be unnecessarily taken up by the visit of the President. Their attention would, to some degree at least, be diverted from the vital business of beating the Germans. Great precautions would have to be taken to insure, so far as possible, the Presidential safety. Their burdens and responsibilities would be increased. Without a very real reason for his presence the head of the nation has no right to expose himself to the hazards of such an adventure. Barring such a reason such a visit at such a time and under existing circumstances certainly would be denounced by the Republicans as a cheap political gesture utterly unworthy of the President of the United States. And so it would be—a deliberate use of the war for purely political purposes.

ONCE THAT idea penetrated the popular mind the political consequences to Mr. Roosevelt might be disastrous. This Commander in Chief business can be overplayed. Mr. Roosevelt's effort, in his letter of acceptance, to draw a parallel between himself and GI Joe on the fighting front was extremely strained. Use of the war to justify all White House politics and cover up all New Deal politicians may react before the campaign is over.

WILLIAMSTOWN—(INS)—Recipients of letters from three sailors aboard a battleship in the French invasion area have reason to believe there was collaboration among the authors. Identical epistles were mailed by Charles Louis Crozier, of Williamstown; Howard Hill, of Easton, and Charles Breidinger, of Tatamy.

Dear Father we thank Thee for Thy teaching concerning the meaning of life. Length of years does not constitute life. Life is a certain quality of living. In Jesus we have, not length of years, but perfect living. It is this life which is eternal and which cannot die. May we, this day, enter more enthusiastically into this Abundant Life which is ours providing we are willing to lose ourselves in Christ and live in Him and with Him for Thy glory. In Jesus' holy name we pray. Amen.

FLEETWINGS LOSES

Sullivan's Slants Could Not Be Solved By The Fleetwingers

TRENTON INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE Schedule for Tomorrow VOLTZ-TEXACO - ROHM & HAAS (Maple Beach field)

EDGELEY, July 15—Superb relief pitching by "Eddie" Sullivan aided the Voltz-Texaco team to mark up its second straight win of the Trenton Industrial League last evening on the Edgely diamond. The Fleetwings Arrows were the losers with the final score, 8-6.

Sullivan's southpaw slants were not put into work until the eighth inning when Shackleton appeared to be weakening. One was out, one run in and the bags loaded when Manager George Dougherty sent in Sullivan to relieve Shackleton. Sullivan promptly ended the inning by fanning both Lou Heisler and Barney Ludwig. He added two more strikeouts in the ninth.

The game was a nip and tuck affair all the way with the lead changing hands several times and it was until the last half of the eighth when the Voltz-men scored twice when Alex Dewsnap doubled to score Stratton and later scored himself on an error that the game was decided.

Sammy Calderone, young catcher for the Wingers, put his team ahead in the third when he lammed the ball into the canal for a home run. One was on base at the time. But it was only a short lead for in the last half of the inning, Dewsnap came through with a triple and scored on an outfield fly to deadlock the count.

With the score evened up, Voltz went ahead in the fourth when Bill Dougherty hit a two-bagger, advanced when Shackleton got on via an error and scored on George Hitter's fly to left.

Shackleton went sour in the fifth and gave Fleetwings a tally on walks to Heisler, Bloom, Calderone and D'Ascendis. The rally ended when Pappaterra grounded out to third.

In the sixth, the gasoleers went ahead again when Bill Dougherty hit safely. Stratton walked, and Hitter came through with a single.

Red Army Slugs Way To Grodno; Capture Pinsk

The Soviet midnight communiqué disclosed that Major-General Engel, commander of the German 55th Infantry Division, had surrendered with his entire staff at Volkovysk. He was the 20th Nazi general to be taken by the Russians since they launched their big push June 23rd.

(The secret German-language radio station Atlantic was quoted by NBC monitors as reporting that "Russian armies entered Rozanka in East Prussia" at noon Friday, but there was no confirmation of the report from any official source.)

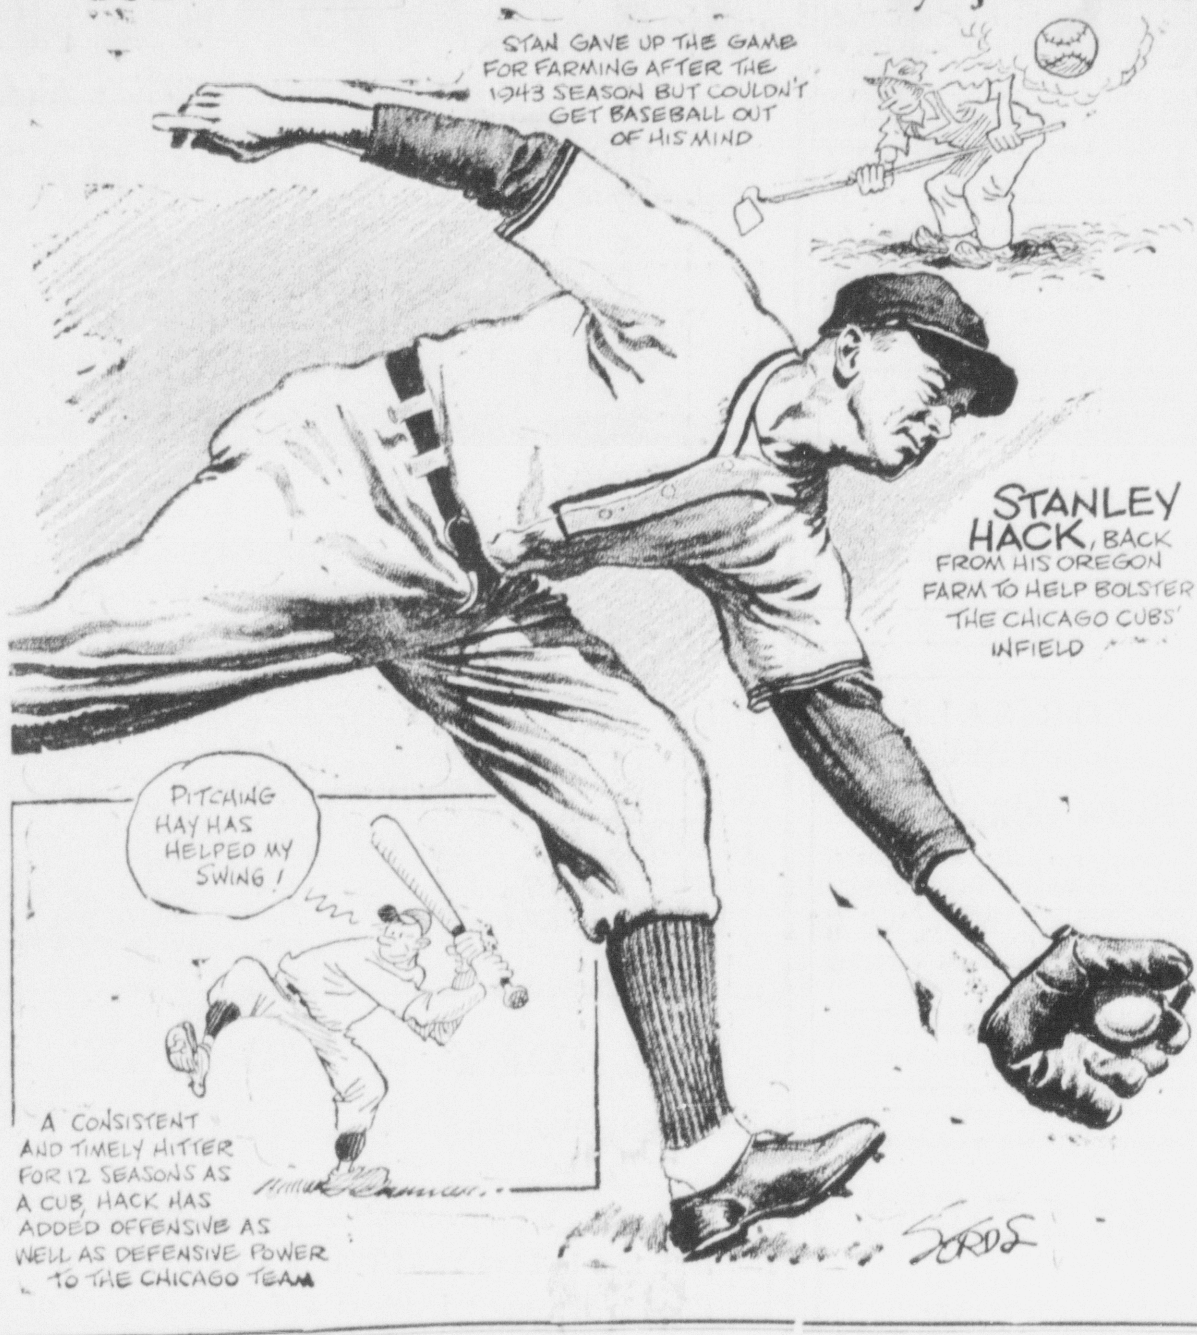

(The Nazi DNB agency claimed that the Germans had driven into Grodno twice Thursday but were driven out.)

By International News Service American First Army forces smashing ahead on a four-mile sector of the Normandy front east of Lessay punched forward to within one mile of the Nazi western defense anchor today and surged to within two miles of the road and rail junction of Periers.

Lieut. Gen. Omar M. Bradley's forces, hurling back elements of some 11 or 12 elite Nazi divisions, seized the towns of Beaufvais and La Jourdanerie in their drive on Lessay. A few miles east of Nazi Marshal Rommel's anchor city, the Yanks drove Nazi defenders from seen run.

Lalonde and reached the flooded Ay River basin.

Slashing ahead east of Lessay, Yank forces threatened encirclement of the German garrison holding that vital defense point.

Elsewhere, along a 49-mile front from Saint Lo to the sea, American units scored small but important gains, blasting back reinforced German units in bitter fighting from hedgerow to hedgerow.

An Allied Headquarters spokesman announced that the entire Cherbourg peninsula area is now "secure."

Near the eastern end of the American sector of the Normandy front, Gen. Bradley's men lunged forward in another big advance which thrust Yank lines to a point two-and-a-half miles east of the nine way road and rail hub of Saint Lo.

On the blazing eastern front, the unchecked Soviet war machine smashed into the outskirts of Grodno, key German stronghold only 20 miles from the Nazi-designated border of East Prussia, after seizing the great supply base of Pinsk in the heart of the Pripiet Marshes.

Other Russian forces advancing toward the bastion of Bialystok, central strong point on the Nazi Polish defense line running from Grodno to Brest-Litovsk, seized the town of Volkovysk.

One Soviet spearhead moving southwest from captured Wilno (Vilna) took the rail town of Druskeniki, on the southern frontier of Lithuania, 12 miles northeast of the Suwalki triangle which Germany has claimed as the border of East Prussia since 1939.

Red Army forces in Lithuania and central Latvia liberated more than 310 towns from the Nazis on the 22nd day of their "win the war" summer offensive.

COMMUNICATION

Pearl Harbor Editor, The Courier, Bristol, Pa.

Dear Sir: This is a letter from William Shire, ... in Honolulu. Would you put it in The Courier, as a lot of folks would like to read it. While here in Pearl Harbor I ran into a few local boys, and were we all happy! The boys were "Tony" Puccio, Joseph Platch, Morris Bloodgood, Lewis Dopsos, Dominick Potena. Boy, what a happy bunch! Also Carmen Gullato. They all said to do lots of work in Bristol, and help us all return soon to our homes. And also we wish The Courier would continue on as it has done so many years. ... I remain, yours, WILLIAM SHIRE, S. 2/C

Sports Comment

By Georgie Woolf As Told to Harry O. Hoyt Distributed by International News Service NEW YORK, July 15—(INS)—Count Fleet was a horse with real time. And time is what I mean. Take his very last race, for instance, 2:28-1/5 for one mile and a half—a race which he won by 25 official lengths. Only once in the history of our racine has that time been beaten—when Bolingbroke beat Whirlaway in 2:27-3/5. What could the Count have done if he had been pressed? I believe he might have clipped three seconds off Bolingbroke's record. He comes closer to being another abiscuit than any horse I've seen run.

Count Wins With Ease

Johnny Longden doesn't know how fast he is. No one knows. He wins with incredible ease, carries weight and isn't temperamental. But—he would have to do what the Biscuit has done to sell me the idea he is quite that good.

Look at it this way. Man o' War never was at the mercy of the handicappers although he carried plenty of weight. Count Fleet has carried only scale weight, 126 pounds top.

Not so Seabiscuit. Once he hit his stride, the handicappers made him the high weight almost every time he ran.

Let me add, however, he never carried as much as Man o' War. Weight will stop any horse, as it will any athlete, but I honestly believe a great horse like Seabiscuit could carry 150 pounds and win—yes, as little as he is.

Tom Smith and Mr. Howard would have yelled to high heaven if he had been asked to carry the weights Discovery backed but that isn't saying he couldn't have done it.

Seabiscuit, you will gather, was no ordinary thoroughbred. The fortune he won on the race tracks is only part of the story. What would Man o' War have done at seven? He was retired after his three-year-old campaign, having had only two years of racing. Undoubtedly Count Fleet will be returned to competition and we may get the answer as to his fortitude.

When you stop to figure it, we jockeys just go along for the ride. I have been called "The Iceman"—I'm supposed to be cool and collected. Perhaps I am. But I can name a dozen other race riders with equal composure.

Plenty of others ride just as well as I. We are all at the mercy of the horse. The average thoroughbred weighs half a ton more than his rider and usually has his own idea of how he wants to run his race.

You should be in the saddle on a fast-breaking horse like Occupation, for example. When the starting bell rings, you might weigh twice my hundred and sixteen pounds and you'd still find you were on a horse that was doing what he wanted to do and you couldn't stop him.

One day last summer at Washington Park I dismounted from one of those speed horses which had missed by inches. A racing fan leaned over the rail and cried, "I thought when you got up on that pig you might reserve him and come from behind—you're just like all the rest!" I didn't answer him.

If he only knew how much the trainer and I had hoped I would have been able to do what the disappointed fan had wanted us to do!

daughter, was killed instantly a short distance from his home.

Barbara, visibly affected by the loss of her grandfather, to whom she was devoted, wore a blue dress, blue hat and black gloves to the funeral.

Simple services were held in the chapel of the Beulah Cemetery, a short distance from the Sellers home.

Mrs. Sellers hurried her daughter to a waiting car to prevent any possible contact with the public, and in order to prevent any interviews.

It was a few hours before the funeral that Barbara's father and her mother, Meta, gave a detailed account of their attitude toward their daughter's romance.

Mrs. Sellers said that her daughter was overcome with grief over the death of the grandfather because they had been unusually devoted.

"Because of this," Mrs. Sellers said, "we haven't talked about Barbara's future plans since she came home. But we hope she will come to her senses. The boy is not her type, and would not fit into life out in the country."

It is possible, it was stated, that Barbara may return to her studies at Temple University, Philadelphia, on Monday. She said she would like to return but feared the attention that might be drawn to her because of what had transpired during the past week.
